The majority of conditions requiring surgical intervention can be diagnosed and treated in primary care if the general practitioner has the skills and confidence to do so. Performing clinical procedures in your practice will help you increase your revenue, reduce unnecessary referrals to surgeons and public hospitals, and make you a favourable referral option for your peers.

The Professional Certificate of Clinical Procedures is ideal for medical professionals who wish to further their surgical office-based knowledge and become adept at dealing with surgical problems commonly encountered in daily practice. In the optional practical workshop you will be equipped with valuable experience and practical knowledge, with the opportunity to practise your skills on pork parts and simulated models with hands-on guidance from a team of senior surgeons and surgical assistants.

“ The Professional Certificate of Clinical Procedures course was informative, confidence-boosting, relevant to general practice and effectively taught about safety issues. I recommend this program for all GPs who look at skin cancers.
